

EVACUEE PHOTOPACK

Teacher notes and ideas for use:

Some of the best learning in any subject takes place through independent investigation and open-ended questioning strategies, and (in terms of History in particular) Historical Enquiry of primary and secondary source material, and as such some suggestions for use are as follows:

- SPEAKING/LISTENING: As prompts for group discussion – e.g. asking the children to compile a group of starter questions such as “what are the people in the photos wearing?/ how is this different to how we dress today?” / “can you create a wordlist in your group to describe how the children might be feeling?” / “What were the labels for?”
- WRITING: As a source of motivation for writing – e.g. choose a person from the photos and write their diary for that particular day; write a newspaper article describing a particular event in the evacuation process; write a playscript of the conversation between two of the characters in the photo; design/write a form that the teacher might have used to list all the children (i.e. what information would she need to have?); design a ww2 style poster about the benefits of evacuation
- DRAMA: As a starter for a drama task – e.g. recreate a photo scene in your group and then press PLAY, with the characters interacting as they might have done in real life – what would they say and do? How would they feel?
- ART: As prompts for art work – e.g. draw the scene in a style of a particular artist; draw a scene from a train window on the journey; make a collage full of the items a child would take
- GEOGRAPHY: to learn the differences between urban/rural locations: list the differences between the two locations; research the names of places that people were evacuated to and from and find them on the map – how far did they travel?
- ICT: as a research and presentation tool – e.g. look up evacuation routes on google earth and use the ‘path’ tool to measure the distance; use powerpoint to create a project about evacuees; type/design an evacuation poster in MSword
